Research Internship

| Project Title | Research Internship |
|---|---|
| Project Summary | Are you a natural investigator and enjoy seeking answers to questions? If so the Selma to Montgomery National Historic Trail needs you. As a research intern, you will work closely with our Interpretation team to dig into the 'who, what, when, where, how, and why?' of the Voting Rights Movement. |
| Country | United States |

Project Description

If you are inquisitive and enjoy a challenge, this research intern opportunity is for you. At the Selma to Montgomery National Historic Trail you will work with the Interpretation and Collections team for 10 hours per week over six months. You will be seeking answers to questions. Some of these questions will be about the people, places, and objects of the movement, as well as questions about "what was it like?" You will be able to write short informational pieces, digitally collection documents and photographs, and help with interpretation and collections staff develop a content pool for other researchers.
